

Manuscript Withdrawal Policy of Law Journals

The publication of an article in a peer-reviewed journal is the building block in the development of a coherent and respected network of knowledge. It is a direct reflection of the quality of the work of the authors and the institutions that support them.

Law Journals adhere to the highest standards of ethics and integrity in journals publication; we request our authors to sincerely adhere to the global publication norms for quality publications.

We ardently believe that all authors undertake following precautions before submitting the manuscript to any journal:

- The manuscript is free from copyright infringement.
- The manuscript submitted by author has consent of all the authors in the group.
- Students/Researchers should take prior permission from their guides and professors before sending/submitting their manuscripts in journals.
- The manuscript is not published either partially or completely in any form, in any other Journal.
- Manuscript is properly withdrawn from any previous publisher.
- Manuscript is not submitted to any other journal at the time of submission to Law Journals.
- Manuscript is not a redundant publication i.e., publishing many similar manuscripts based on the same experiment.

Timeline

Normally Law Journals follow rapid publication strategy, however, depending upon the manuscript and editorial board availability, manuscripts vetting may take significantly longer time. In a case where a manuscript has taken more than six months- time for reviewer assignment then Law Journals allow the author to withdraw manuscript without paying any charges.

Please Note: Any manuscript once in editing/reviewing stage is not allowed to be withdrawn without paying Withdrawal Penalty. Law Journals hold ALL RIGHTS to publish the manuscript without further approval from the author and can't be held responsible for publishing of manuscript in any other Journal.

When to submit your paper in other Journals?

Publication is a difficult process, and the author must be prepared to defend his/her submission against rejection from both editors and peer reviewers. It is important to be persistent when getting your manuscript published. It is best not to choose another journal until at least one of the following happens:

- The editors decide that your manuscript is not relevant subject match for the journal.
- The editor rejects your manuscript without review for a second time after you write a response to their first rejection.
- Your manuscript is still rejected after responding to all reviewer comments, and it has received a negative review feedback from the reviewers.
